FIRE BOSSES QUIT WORK IN MINES OF THE VALLEY

No Change of Conditions Today in Mine Matters

COMPROMISE EXPECTED

Thought That Agreement Can be Reached Without Much Trouble

Carrying out their threat the fire bosses refused to return to work in the mines of the valley this morning under former conditions. Some effort is being made by some of the mines to get along without the regular fire bosess. So far as can be learned there has been no effort made by either the operators or the fire bosses to compromise except in the vicinity of Pittsburg, where separate agreements were reached.

It is not generally thought that the strike of the fire bosses will be long drawn out or especially serious, although it will greatly hinder the operation of the mines for a while.

VALUABLE HORSE BREAKS ITS NECK

Tries to Escape From Tormenters and Falls Over Wire

HEAD TURNED UNDER BOBY

McDermott's Creamery and Butter Products company lost a valuable horse yesterday when the animal in trying to escape from some of its tormentors triped on a string of wire at the "Pines" yesterday afternoon and fell, breaking its neck.

The horse had been grazing at the "Pines." It is supposed that some boys began throwing stones at the animal to see it run. The horse wheeled and ran but in so doing caught one of its front feet on a piece of wire surrounding the tennis court. In falling the animal's head was turned under its body and its neck was broken.

NEW OFFICERS ARE ELECTED BY BAPTISTS

At a meeting of the Baptist baseball team of the Charleroi Church baseball league held Saturday night at the home of J. L. Revees on Fallowfield avenue, Carroll E. Cummings was elected manager to take the place of Bruce Cross resigned. P. Floyd Chalfant was elected assistant manager. An organization which had been partly formed at a previous meeting was completed by the election of D. C. Whitlatch president. T. Jay Reeves is the secretary-treasurer.

TO LEAVE PASTORATE APRIL 30

Rev. Kerr Asks for Commissioners to be Appointed

TO DISSOLVE RELATIONS

Rev. G. G. Kerr, pastor of the Washington Avenue Presbyterian church, announced to his congregation his intention of leaving his pastorate here to accept a Canonsburg call, and asked the members to have commissioners appointed to ask the presbytery for a dissolution of pastoral relations at the Sunday morning's service. A meeting was called for Wednesday night of this week to take such action.

Rev. Kerr has forwarded his acceptance of the call to become pastor of the First Presbyerian church of Canonsburg. He will leave Charleroi to begin his new work April 30, preaching his last sermon on April 23.

Since receiving the call of the Canonsburg church, Rev. Kerr has been tendered the presidency of Waynesburg college. This position was made vacant by the resignation of Dr. W. M. Hudson, who was forced to relinquish his duties there on account of failing health. Mr. Kerr did not consider this proposition.

Important Meeting

A meeting of the Ladies Auxiliary of the Monessen-Charleroi Hospital will be held at the residence of Mrs. F. P. McCloskey of Crest avenue tomorrow evening. Business of importance is to be transacted and a full attendance of members is requested.

Home Over Sunday

Assemblyman William Feeney, who was home from Harrisburg over Sunday left for the State capital this morning. On his way home last week he attended the district miners' convention in session in Pittsburg and made an address before that body.

Misses Emma Ryland, Minerva MacDonald, and Alice Brison of Uniontown visited over Sunday with the former's cousin, Miss Nell C. Ryland, on Meadow avenue.

MAD DOG BITE CAUSES DEATH OF MONESSEN BOY AFTER A MONTH

Board of Health at Monessen to Have Charge of Quarantining the Community---Will Write to State Department

SEVERAL PERSONS TAKING THE PASTEUR TREATMENT

It is likely that a strict quarantine will be enforced at Monessen on all dogs, as the result of a mad dog scare. One boy, Carlton Katzer, who was bitten about a month ago by a dog supposedly afflicted with hydrophobia, died on Saturday as an indirect result, and it is stated that there are six others taking the Pasteur treatment at Pittsburg.

This morning the board of health, the board of trade, the council and the chamber of commerce and members of the medical association of Monessen held a joint meeting and the matter of establishing a quarantine was placed in the hands of the board of health. This body at once started work on having dogs of the town muzzled. the State board of health will also be communicated with to learn what steps it advises.

The Katser boy was the first person bitten. He started taking the Pasteur treatment at Pittsburg, but took the measles and had to discontinue the treatment. Others bitten shortly after are still taking the treatment.

It is thought that there were 50 or 75 dogs bitten, and an outbreak of rabies among the canines of the neighborhood of Monessen is greatly feared.

On Saturday Donald McMahon, the son of a banker, was bitten and is now taking the Pasteur treatment.

DUNLEVY MAN DIES

Had Lived Along Monongahela Valley for About 30 Years

WAS A SECTION FOREMAN

John Fitzgerald, 53 years old, and one of the best known citizens of this part of the Monongahela valley, died Sunday morning at his home in Dunlevy. The funeral will be held at 9 o'lock Tuesday morning with requiem high mass at St. Jerome's Catholic church, Charleroi. The body will be taken on the 10:29 train to Pittsburg for burial in Calvary cemetery.

Mr. Fitzgerald was a resident of the Monongahela valley for about 30 years previous to his death. For the past seven years he has been employed as section foreman by the Pittsburg Railways company, and for 21 years previous to that worked for the Kittsburg, Virginia and Charleston railroad as a section man.

ADVANCE NOTICE PER GRASSHOPPER

Spring Weather Coming Sure and Good Season Indicated for Farmers

INSECT AHEAD OF TIME

It took Howard Riggle, the seven year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Riggle of Shady avenue, and a big grasshopper to pull one over on old King Winter. Essentially grasshoppers are not supposed to inhabit this part of the country until late in the spring, but one big fellow was the victim of mixed dates, and was cast forth upon terra firma while a snow storm raged. But yesterday as he bravely struggled for life, he was discovered by little Howard, who forwith adopted the tobacco spitting, long-legged jumper. The grasshopper still thrives but inside the Riggle home where it is warmer. It is considered little less than remarkable to find an insect of that species thise arly in the spring and is regarded by farmers as a good omen.

New Castle Boy Makes Highest Grade in Test

TEN CANDIDATES COMPETE

The highest grade in the examination held Saturday under direction of Congressman Charles Matthews of the Twenty-fourth district for the appointment to a cadetship to the West Point Military Academy from the 24th Congressional district of Pennsylvania, was made by Norman Jay Boots of New Brighton, with a grade of 64. The next highest three were Kenneth Nicholson of Monongahela; Cecil Hugh Blair of New Castle, and Franklin Fulton Elder of New Brighton.

The examination was held by Superintendent Kimes of New Castle; Superintendent of Beaver county, and E. B. Enoch, principal of the Eighth ward schools of Washington. While the number that took the examination was equal to that of former years, the grades made were not nearly so good.

BASEBALL PLAYERS EMIGRATE

Charleroi Church League Tossers in Ohio State

OSBORNE GOES TO LIMA

The emigration of ball players from this vicinity began yesterday, when Arch Osborne with three church leagures left for Lima, Ohio. Osborne took with him Pitcher Sherman Keifer and Third Baseman "Bob" Newton of Charleroi and Bennie Cornell of California. Mort Dietz left yesterday for Hamilton, Ohio, where he will be tried out by that team, which is under the management of Jimmy Barton. Both Lima and Hamilton are in the Ohio State League.

"Bill" Phillips, manager of the Youngstown, Ohio, team of the Ohio and Pennsylvania league left last Thursday, and youngsters to be tried out by him will report today. First Baseman Sharkey with the Lutherans last year will probably train out with the Youngstown team, and may be placed by Manager Phillips in fast company.

Alex Sutherland of Speers and Brakewood of Fayette City will be tried out by Phillips.

Phil Hinton, the star New Castle catcher, who has been spending the winter in Charleroi, will leave Tuesday for his home in Baltimore, Md. and will report in a couple of weeks to New Castle.

"Billy" Kuhn who was intending to go with Osborne to Lima, Ohio, was unable on account of illness of his mother to leave, and may not try out at all.

Governor Tener Would do Away With Lengthy Litigation

IN FAVOR OF COMMISSION

Thinks Joint Body of Employers and Workmen Should Investigate

(Special Correspondence)

Harrisburg, April 3—Although two resolutions have been introduced in the Legislature relative to employers' liability in the case of accidents, neither of them are said to be in accord with Governor Tener's ideas on the subject. One of the resolutions was introduced by Senator McNichol of Philadelpia, and has already passed the Senate and the other has been introduced by Representative Walnut of Philadelphia. It is stated that an attempt will be made to get together on a bill that will conform more to the Governor's views. Governor Tener referred to this matter in his inaugural address. He is said to favor a commission whereby all claims may be investigated without the costly litigation now the only redress by an injured employ.

It is expected that the Public Utilities Commission bill will be introduced in the Legislature this week, and will be pushed with all possible speed. The school code, will also come in for an undue share of attention. It is expected that the Sproul main highway bill will be considered in the Senate during the week. So far as known no effort is being made to have the route changed so that one of the highways between county seats would pass along the river and connect Charleroi and all the important river towns in one improved boulevard.

Much interest is manifested in the "Pittsburg Plan" for a new city charter for Pittsburg. Many Charleroi people have looked into the project and heartily approve the general outline of the plans. A number of hearings have been scheduled for this week, including woman suffrage, patent medicines, the bituminous code and others.

INDICATIONS FOR GOOD ATTENDANCE

Judging by the number of tickets already sold, the "Tom Thumb" wedding which is to be held in School Hall Thursday and Friday nights of this week by the ladies of the First Presbyterian church will be largely attended. The play is a pantomime, in which a large contingent of the little tots about town will participate.

Architect J. C. Brenton has been engaged by George S. Might to draw up plans and specifications for his new three story building to be built on Fifth street, opposite the Wilbur Hotel. It is the intention to have the excavation work started within a few weeks and to have the construction under way by May 1.

Prof. and Mrs. Karl Keffer left Saturday for Cave Hill Farm, near Three Springs, Huntingdon county, where they will spend the spring and summer. Prof. Keffer has closed his music studio for the season.

Short but Important

United States Senator Boise Penrose has expressed confidence that the extra session of Congress which convenes tomorrow will be short but exceedingly important. The Democratic majority in the lower House, it is the thought of Senator Penrose, will be on its good behavior and will endeavor to dispose of the work in hand with neatness and dispatch.

It is generally understood that the extra session will take on the form of a street parade by the contending parties with a view of attracting favorable attention for the Presidential campaign of next year.

It is generally admitted that the Democrats will be forced to establish themselves in public confidence if they are to have even a look-in at the Presidential race. No one seriously believes that the recent turning over of the House of Representatives at Washington was the result of confidence in Democracy or regard for that party's principles, but was intended as a rebuke to certain Republicans who had sacrificed the confidence of the people.

While the Democrat in Congress are certain to do their best to establish themselves, the offensive element in Republican ranks has been eliminated, and Senator Penrose will assume the Republican leadership. All his skill and experience will be applied during the extra session and the senior Senator is entirely confident that, by acting with and for President Taft, there will be little or no real trouble in working out all the plans of the Republicans and thus guarantee a restoration of public confidence.

With Senator Penrose as the accepted leader of the Republicans that party in the Senate will start the extra session with more harmony than has attended that body since the discontents first appeared there.

PICKED UP IN PASSING

Up in Tionesta, Forest county, according to the version of a traveling man who spent Sunday in town, a couple of boys by the name of Custer are in jail, charged with an unique offense. Information was made by the Human Society and the offense is "hatching deformed and degenerate chickens, and publicly exhibiting the same." It appears that the boys attended a show where a Japanese juggler exhibited a bottle with eggs inside. Later the boys learned that the eggs were soaked in vinegar, which made the shells pliable, after which they could be stretched out long enough to be passed into a narrow necked bottle, after which they were pressed back again into shape with a small rod. The boys got a couple of dozen eggs and experimented. After the vinegar treatment they twisted the eggs into all kinds of shapes—made sausages, pretzels and doughnuts of them. Then to cap the climax they put the freak shaped eggs into the family incubator, and in due time hatched out a bunch of freak chickens. Some were of the dashund variety, while others gave a good imitation of the hoop snake of tradition.

The freaks were so wonderful that the boys began exhibiting them, and just as they were in the midst of a lucerative business the humane agent swooped down on them, and in default of bail the boys were committed to jail to the await action of the grand jury.

A Pittsburg physician, who was a recent visitor in the town, states that he was once called to a household, a child of which had a light case of scarlet fever. There were several other children in the family and the first thing the doctor inquired about was the kind of quarantine that was being maintained.

"'You keep he patient away from the rest of the children, I suppose?' said he.

"'Lord bless you, yes,' said the father. 'I don't let them come near the others except for meals.'"

Mind Your Own Business.

An old custom once prevailed in a remote place in England of giving a clock to any one who would truthfully swear that he had minded his own business alone for a year and a day and had not meddled with his neighbors. Many came, but few, if any, gained the prize, which was more difficult to win than the Dunmow flitch of bacon. Though they swore on the four gospels and held out their hands in certain hope, some hitch was sure to be found somewhere, and for all their asseverations the clock remained stationary on the shelf, no one being able to prove his absolute immunity from uncalled for interference in things not in any way concerning himself. At last a young man came with a perfectly clear record, and the clock seemed as if it was at last about to change owners. Then said the custodian, "Oh, a young man was here yesterday and made mighty sure he was going to have the clock, but he didn't." "And why didn't he get it?" "What's that to you?" snapped the custodian. "That's not your business, and you don't get the clock."

HUNTERS' FEE BILL IS URGED

Friends of Measure Asked to Press Its Passage

WOULD BENEFIT WHOLE STATE

Bill Provides For Annual Payment of $1 by Resident Hunters as License Fee—Much Good Can Be Done With Revenue So Derived—Legislature Will Soon Decide Fate of Measure. Now Before Senate.

Intense interest, state-wide in its scope, is being aroused in the Resident Hunters' License Bill, which has just been favorably reported to the Senate at Harrisburg. The measure is now before the Senate for consideration and the fate of the bill will be decided within a week.

Senators—and Representatives are favorable to the bill, though some are still awaiting the final word from their constituents. Expressions of opinion are being eagerly sought at Harrisburg and a committee of citizens urging the passage of the bill have been instructed to advise all voters in the state to make their wishes known to their representatives.

In the canvass already made not one voter in 500 has opposed the bill and in nearly every instance its provisions have been received with enthusiasm.

The bill provides for the payment of $1 per year as a license fee by all resident hunters. Land owners or bona fide tenants and their children hunting on their own or rented lands, are exempt. Fifty per cent of the revenue so derived will be used in payment of bounties for the destruction of weasels, mink, hawks and vermin that destroy song and insectiverous birds and poultry.

It is estimated that the amount thus to be distributed in bounties will be about $75,000 per year. Unless this bill passes there will be no bounty provided for the next two years, as the state has refused to appropriate any more money for that purpose.

The remaining 50 per cent of the revenue raised will be applied to the protection, propagation and distribution of game under the supervision of the state game commission.

At present the appropriation available to the game commission amounts to only $20,000 per year. This meager amount must be applied to protect over 28,000,000 acres and as the pending measure will provide a revenue of from $150,000 to $200,000 per year the game commission will develop into a useful and highly valuable branch of state government.

While residents of the large cities have been slow to realize the fact, those who dwell in the suburban and country districts have been quick to realize that the proposed bill if passed will increase all bird and game life within the state. The payment of the small annual fee of $1 by those who love the recreation of hunting will double and treble the number of birds and game throughout the state and mean a large increase in food supply. It will make possible a good day's shooting to the man with limited time and means without the expense of long trips. It will undoubtedly soon bring about a longer open season and more liberal daily allowances per gun of game taken.

Friends of the bill promise that it would soon bring about a friendly cooperation between the paid game warden and the forester of the forestry department that will largely decrease losses from forest fires and promote the betterment of game conditions throughout the state.

As important as all other conditions, the additional bounty provided for the destruction of vermin and pests will save the farmers additional thousands yearly.

A peculiar feature in connection with the bill is the fact that hunters themselves are asking the privilege of paying the tax that will insure these benefits. The committee having the bill in charge are all men who love hunting as a pastime. The committee consists of: Edwin K. Morse, chairman, Pittsburg; John M. Phillips, Carrick; Charles A. Painter, Pittsburg; R. R. Bennett, Pittsburg; H. F. Ward, Washington, Pa., and Thomas Leggett Pittsburg.

There is, admittedly, no state in the Union with better opportunity for the development of game and bird life and magnificent and highly valuable forest resources than Pennsylvania. Wanton destruction of animal life of irresponsible persons is causing irreparable damage to the undeserving and the proposed act is regarded by all fair huntsmen as a modest but legitimate tax for providing a fund that will forever safeguard the state. In Harrisburg it is recognized as the most unselfish act ever urged before the legislature.

The committee urges all interested in game and forest protection to communicate at once with their representatives in Harrisburg and urge the passage of this measure. State representatives and senators are anxiously awaiting the voice of the people and it should make itself heard in unmistakable terms. The senate will take first action upon the bill and it is imperative that the public will be registered at once.

A Long Credit.

The motto of the highland host that battled for the Stuart cause, which bonny Prince Charlie headed, apparently was that heaven helps those who help themselves liberally. They levied toll on the henroost, stable and, according to the author of "The Land of Romance," even on the pockets of the Covenanters.

At Swarthholm a party of these marauders overhauled the house of a tailor, and when one of them was about to cut up a web of homespun that had taken his fancy the good wife earnestly remonstrated.

"A day'll come when ye'll ha' tae pay for that," she solemnly assured him.

Scissors in hand, Donald paused. "An' when will she pe hafing to do that?" he asked.

"At the last day," said she.

"An' that will pe a fery goot long credit," the robber coolly returned. "She wass going to pe only taking a coat, but now she will pe taking a waistcoat as well."

A Mountain In the Sky.

Somewhere many miles away from this earth an enormous mountain twenty miles high is flying through space. The mountain is known astronomically as the planet Eros. The ordinary man has long taken it for granted that all the planets are more or less round in shape. The small planet Eros, however, is an exception to this rule. According to the latest astronomical information, it is a mere mountain in space, "without form and void," and as it turns upon its axis first one corner and then another is presented to view. These small worlds (few are over ten or twenty miles across) are not large enough to have sufficient gravity to draw their structure into symmetry and remain as when launched into space—mammoth meteorites. A tantalizing fact for astronomers is that Eros passed very close to us about Jan. 24, 1894—before the planet was recognized—and that quite so near an approach is not due again till 1975.

"The Mine's Blown Up."

I was sitting on the edge of my bed, loosening the heel of one of my rubber boots with the toe of the other, when suddenly through the stillness of the sleeping town, from the power house half a mile away, came a low and rising note, the great siren whistle in the power house. Almost fascinated, I listened as the great note rose higher and more shrill and died away again. One blast meant a fire in the town, two blasts fire in the buildings at the mine and three blasts, the most terrible of all, a disaster or trouble in the mine. Once more, after an interminable pause, the sound came again and once more rose and died away. I did not move, but there was a sudden coldness that came over me as once more, for the third time, the deep note broke out on the quiet air. Almost instantaneously the loud jingle of my telephone brought me to my feet. I took down the receiver. "The mine's blown up," said a woman's voice.—Atlantic.

Saying No.

The author of "Pat McCarty," a book of verse with a setting of prose, shows how naturally some of the Irishmen of Antrim dilute the wine of narrative with the water of verbiage. In the excerpt below—"The Way We Tell a Story"—the diluent is used with a particularly free hand:

Says I to him, I says, says I,
Says I to him, I says,
The thing, says I, I says to him,
Is just, says I, this ways.

And onything I cud, I says,
I'd do, I wud indeed.
I don't know any man, I says,
I'd do it for, says I,
As fast, I says, as for yoursel'.
That's tellin' ye no lie.
There's naught, says I, I wudn't do
To plase your feyther's son,
But this, I says, ye see, says I,
I says, it can't be done.

The Spectacled Bear.

The spectacled bear of Ecuador is so called because of a patch of white around each eye, which makes the animal look as though he was peering through a pair of great spectacles.

In size and general color the spectacled bear looks not unlike the American black bear. But its hair is very shaggy. At each side of the head is a white bar, which gives the animal the appearance of wearing a halter. But the most distinctive feature is the white around the eyes.

The News by Windmill.

In certain parts of Holland births, marriages and deaths are frequently announced by the windmills instead of in the newspapers. When a miller gets married he stops his mill with the arms of the wheel in an oblique position and with the sails unfurled. His friends and guests often do likewise with their mills in token of the ceremony. To indicate a birth the wheel is stopped with the arms in a slanting position, but at a more acute angle than for a marriage and with the two upper sails unfurled. Should a miller die the sails of his mill are all furled and the wheel is turned round until the arms assume an upright cross, in which position they are left until after the funeral has taken place.—Harper's Weekly.

A Comparison.

Two friends met one day after a long absence. One of them had a very ruddy complexion, and his nose was carmine. The other looked into his face and said:

"Ah, John, I doot"—

But John said he was not to judge by appearances, as he only drank one glass of beer in a day.

"Oh, weel," said the other, "yer face, perhaps, is like our gas meter—it registers mair than it consumes."—London Answers.

Jury Penalties.

Nowadays no penalty is enforced when the twelve men chosen to form the jury are unable to agree upon a verdict. Formerly, however, a refractory juryman was committed to prison and the verdict of the eleven was taken. In the reign of King Edward III. the judges decided that a verdict given by a majority was a nullity and recommended that the judges should carry the jury about with them in a cart till they should agree. The old custom that jurors should fast until they had agreed in their verdict prevailed long, but was mercifully relaxed somewhat in Tudor times, and during Queen Elizabeth's reign a banquet was usually given to the jury by the successful party to a suit.—St. Paul Pioneer Press.

Science and Cheese.

A medical authority kindly assures us that as long as cheese isn't decayed it will not affect the health of the consumer. This is a fact that we have suspected for a considerable time. But how is the ordinary cheese epicure to detect the difference unless he waits for results?

There is cheese so thoroughly disguised in the costume and aroma of decay that its proper standing on the sanitary testing table would puzzle a conjurer.

For instance, there is the brand known as limburger.

But why pursue the subject?—Cleland Plain Dealer.

Invisible Indians.

All Indians seem to have learned a wonderful way of walking unseen, making themselves invisible like certain spiders, which, in case of alarm, caused, for example, by a bird alighting on the bush their webs are spread upon, immediately bounce themselves up and down on their elastic threads so rapidly that only a blur is visible. The wild Indian power of escaping observation, even where there is little or no cover to hide in, was probably slowly acquired in hard hunting and fighting lessons while trying to approach game, take enemies by surprise or get safely away when compelled to retreat. And this experience transmitted through many generations seems at length to have become what is vaguely called instinct.—John Muir in Atlantic.

AFRAID OF MOONLIGHT.

The Reason Porto Ricans Carry Umbrellas at Night.

"The majority of Porto Ricans have instilled in them from earliest infancy a superstitious dread of the full moon's rays," said a business man who has just returned from that country.

"It is a curious sight to the American visitor to note men and women going along the streets and highways of the island with umbrellas raised over their heads in the lone watches of the night, and the more brilliantly the moon is shining the greater will be the number of people who are thus protecting themselves from her beams. Out in the sequestered rural districts a gay mounted cavalier will be met at midnight, his bridle rein in one hand and an upraised umbrella in the other. It looks weird and also ridiculous, but the natives do it for a peculiar reason. They are possessed of the conviction that Luna's full light striking upon mortals is almost sure to make them mentally unsound—that is to say, lunatics—and that is why they interpose a shield between them and her dazzling brightness.

"To sleep where the moon could shine full upon one is, in the view of a Porto Rican, to tempt fate, and it would be a daring one who could be hired to do it for any consideration."—Baltimore American.

STRENUOUS LIVING.

A Long Day in the Life of an English Lady in 1791.

As for industrious idleness, which is held to blame for the wrecking of our nervous systems, it was not unknown to an earlier generation. Mme. le Brun assures us that in her youth pleasure loving people would leave Brussels early in the morning, travel all day to Paris to hear the opera and travel all night home. "That," she observes—as well she may—"was considered being fond of the opera."

A paragraph in one of Horace Walpole's letters gives us the record of a day and a night in the life of an English lady—sixteen hours of "strain" which would put New York to the blush. "I heard the Duchess of Gordon's journal of last Monday," he writes to Miss Berry in the spring of 1791. "She first went to hear Handel's music in the abbey; she then clambered over the benches and went to Hastings's trial in the hall, after dinner to the play, then to Lady Lucan's assembly, after that to Ranelagh and returned to Mrs. Hobert's faro table; gave a ball herself in the evening of that morning, into which she must have got a good way, and set out for Scotland the next day. Hercules could not have accomplished a quarter of her labors in the same space of time."—Atlantic Monthly.

A Pretty Poor Portrait.

A Chinaman of very high rank had his portrait painted, and when it was finished the painter requested him to inquire of the passersby what they thought of it. The other agreed and asked the first comer:

"Do you think this portrait like?"

"The hat is extremely like," replied the critic.

The subject of the portrait asked a similar question of a second stranger, who answered that the clothes seemed to be exactly reproduced. He was about to interrogate a third when the painter stopped him and said impatiently:

"The resemblance of the hat and clothes is of no importance. Ask this gentleman what he thinks of the face."

On being asked this question the stranger hesitated a very long time, but at last he replied:

"The beard and hair are first rate."

London as It Was.

Haydn's "Dictionary of Dates" makes the statement that the old name of the city of London was written Lynden or Llyndin, meaning "the city on the lake." An old tradition gives us to understand that London was founded by Brute, a descendant of Aeneas, and called New Troy or Troynovant until the time of Lud, who surrounded the town with walls and named it Caer-Lud, or Lud's Town. This latter is probably the correct version of the story, if for no other reason because it is an easy matter to detect a similarity between the expression Lud's Town and London. It is claimed by some writers that there was a city on the same spot 1,107 years B. C., and it is known that the Romans founded a city there called Londinium A. D. 61.

Real Modesty.

"An actor should be modest, and most actors are," said a prominent one at a luncheon in Pittsburg. "But I know a young actor who at the beginning of his career carried modesty almost too far.

"This young man inserted in all the dramatic papers a want advertisement that said:

"'Engagement wanted—small part, such as dead body or outside shouts preferred.'"

Preferences.

"I think I'll spend my vacation on the lynx," said the first flea. "I'm fond of golf."

"The giraffe for mine," declared the second flea. "I need the highest altitude I can find."—Washington Herald.

HONORED THE MONKEY.

Origin of the Coat of Arms of the Earl of Leinster.

Most of the wild animals have a place in heraldry, and many strange and impossible creatures, such as griffins, dragons and unicorns, have been invented as emblems of daring and valor. But the donkey and the monkey have not been so used, except in one instance, where the monkey has been admitted to the ranks of titled nobility. The story of this adoption is told by Mr. Curtis in his book "One Irish Summer."

On the Leinster coat of arms are three monkeys standing with plain collar and chained; motto, "Crom-a-boo," "To Victory." This is the only coat of arms, I am told, that has ever borne a monkey in the design. It was adopted by John Fitzthomas-Fitzgerald in 1316 for romantic reasons.

While this Earl of Leinster was an infant he was in the castle of Woodstock, which is now owned by the Duke of Marlborough. The castle caught fire. In the confusion the child was forgotten, and when the family and servants remembered him and started a search they found the nursery in ruins. But on one of the towers was a gigantic ape, a pet of the family, carefully holding the young earl in his arms. The animal, with extraordinary intelligence, had crawled through the smoke, rescued the baby and carried it to the top of the tower.

When the earl had grown to manhood he discarded the family coat of arms and adopted the monkeys for his crest, and they have been retained to this day. Wherever you find the tomb of a Fitzgerald you will see the monkeys at the feet of the effigy or under the inscription.

SPENDTHRIFT ISABELLA.

A Sight That Checked Her Royal Extravagance For Awhile.

We are accustomed to think that the day is long past when a sovereign could oppress and offend a whole kingdom by personal extravagance. But the late Isabella of Spain belonged in spirit to the sixteenth century. An incident of her reckless career—which ended in the loss of the throne—is noted in Munsey's Magazine.

She spent money, pouring it out like water, at a time when the treasury was nearly bankrupt and when the proverb "Poor as a Spaniard" was far too true. All her best advisers urged her to practice economy. Very few of them succeeded, and these only for a short time.

A certain chamberlain of hers once hit upon a plan to make her realize how enormous were the sums that she was spending. Passing through the hall of the palace, she was surprised to see a vast heap of silver pieces, resembling the contents of a great bin of wheat, but piled up in the middle of the floor. The queen summoned her chamberlain.

"What is the meaning of all this money?" she demanded of him.

"Oh," he replied, with a low bow, "this is merely the amount which I have brought out to pay the bill of your majesty's glovemaker."—

The queen colored and then laughed, and for several months she was less extravagant in her expenditures for clothes.

E Pluribus Unum.

The country is indebted to John Adams for its national motto, with an Englishman of note sharing in the honor. It seems that while Adams was minister to England Sir John Prestwick, an eminent English antiquary, suggested to him a good motto to represent the union of the American colonies. Adams at once was taken with the idea, which he transmitted to Charles Thompson, the secretary of congress, who on June 20, 1782, reported to that body his design for a government seal. In this the Latin legend "E Pluribus Unum" was to be borne on a ribbon held in the beak of an eagle.

Just where Sir John got the idea is not certain, but it is a fact that the motto was in use on the cover of the Gentleman's Magazine, first published in 1730, and it may have struck his fancy by its applicability to the situation then obtaining in America.

New Zealand's Glaciers.

The great size of the glaciers around Mount Cook, in New Zealand, has been often remarked. The Tasman is eighteen miles long, the Murchison ten miles, the Godley eight miles, the Mueller eight miles and the Hooker seven miles. Most of these glaciers have moraines of exceeding roughness, but the approaches to them are not steep, as is usually the case with European glaciers. The southern Alpine snow line is only a little over 7,000 feet. Glacially polished rocks are rare, and in many ways the mountains are singularly different from those of central Europe.

"I was just telling our friend here, Molly, that it was storming on the day of our marriage."

"Surely not, Hiram! The weather was perfectly lovely!"

"Well, well! I don't know how I got so mixed up about it; probably because it's been storming ever since!"—Atlanta Constitution.

A Fish Story.

"There are as good fish in the sea as were ever taken out of it," remarked Small to Young, who had been refused by Moneybag's daughter.

"Yes, I know. But they are not goldfish."

Circumstances are the rulers of the weak. They are but the instruments of the wise.—Samuel Lover.

Jefferson Davis and His Nerves.

Jefferson Davis shrank from the sight of every form of suffering, even in imagination. When the "Babes In the Wood" was first read to him, a grown man, in time of illness, he would not endure the horror of it. His sympathy with the oppressed was almost abnormal, "so that," says Mrs. Davis, "it was a difficult matter to keep order with children and servants." All this shows that he was nervous, sensitive, which is a terrible handicap to a leader of men. He suffered always from nervous dyspepsia and neuralgia and "came home from his office fasting, a mere mass of throbbing nerves and perfectly exhausted." He was keenly susceptible to the atmosphere about him, especially to the moods of people, "abnormally sensitive to disapproval. Even a child's disapproval discomposed him." And Mrs. Davis admits that this sensitiveness and acute feeling of being misjudged made him reserved and unapproachable. It made him touchy as to his dignity also, and there are stories of his cherishing a grudge for some insignificant or imagined slight and punishing the author of it.—Gamaliel Bradford, Jr., in Atlantic.

Irving and His Money.

John Hare, the English actor, said that one of the failings charged to Irving's account was that of extravagance—that he did not know the value of money. It is quite true he did not know the value of money for himself, but he knew its value to others. He knew its value to the poor and helpless, and to these he gave with a lavish hand.

Once, not long before his death, playing a three nights' engagement in an unpretentious midland town, his habit was to drive nightly to the theater (a very short distance from his hotel) in the same dilapidated fly. The fare was a shilling. The conveyance was shabby, the driver old, poor and worn out. At the conclusion of the engagement, on entering his hotel, Irving said to the landlord, "Have you paid the cabman?" "Yes, Sir Henry." "What did you give him for himself?" "I gave him half a crown, Sir Henry." "Give him a sovereign," was the rejoinder; "he drives very well, and he doesn't drive often."

The Myth of the Doones.

How largely Mr. Blackmore drew upon his imagination for the story of "Lorna Doone" is made clear by F. W. Hackwood in his book, "The Good Old Times." There were, in fact, no Doones. The word was simply a local bogy, a modified form of "Dane," a memory of the faroff times when the viking invaders harried the land. "The only vestige of actuality discoverable is a faint tradition that a fugitive from the battle of Sedgmoor, to escape the hangings of Judge Jeffreys, appropriated the ruins of some wretched huts in recesses of the Badgworthy glen, now 'the Doon valley,' finding there a safe retreat in which he reared a considerable family, which managed to eke out a living by committing petty depredations in the district. The 'last of the Doones,' an old man and his granddaughter, are said to have perished in the snow during the winter of 1800."

Joy In Store For Some One.

Among the advertisements in a monthly magazine we find this:

For Sale or Exchange.—A fine young male bobcat and a female coyote; also a mandolin and pair of fieldglasses.

Such opportunities as this are not often offered. The fieldglasses most of us could manage to do without, but the male bobcat, the female coyote and the mandolin would go far to make life happy for any reasonable individual. All these are productive of music, and music gives joy to all rightly constituted persons. There are, of course, some people who cannot play upon a mandolin, but anybody can play upon a bobcat or a coyote. This fine chance to get a varied and interesting collection of musical instruments will undoubtedly bring many replies.—Rochester Union and Advertiser.

The Laziest People.

There is no doubt that the Malays are among the laziest people in the world. Except in rare cases they will not take the trouble to learn when they are young, and afterward, if they have learned, they will not exert themselves to apply their knowledge to any object which require a sustained effort. That they possess effort is known to any one who has seen Malays engaged in any enterprise which savors of sport. They do not mind the trouble if there is only some risk and excitement in the work.—Times of Malaya.

A Marked Judge.

The descriptive reporter of a certain daily paper in describing the turning of a dog out of court by order of the bench recently detailed the occurrence as follows: "The ejected canine as he was ignominiously dragged from the room cast a glance at the judge for the purpose of being able to identify him at some future time."

Work of Providence.

"The man died eating watermelons," some one said to Brother Dickey.

"Yes, suh," he said. "Providence sometimes puts us in paradise befo' we gits ter heaven."—Atlanta Constitution.

Unspeakable.

"What would you think, daddy, if Algernon Nocash should suggest becoming your son-in-law?"

"Withdraw, my dear, while I think aloud."—Brooklyn Life.

Who He Was.

The "cub" reporter is the greenest reporter on the staff of a newspaper When anything particularly stupid happens on the paper he is the one first to be accused, and he is usually rightly accused. The only salvation for him is to improve, which he does in nine cases out of a dozen. The Boston Journal told recently of an amusing "break" of a wholly innocent nature which a certain cub made.

The reporter had been sent to a suburb to report a sermon. He arrived late, near the close of the service and took a seat near the door. When the

SAVED FROM AN OPERATION

By Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Peoria, Ill.—"I wish to let every one know what Lydia E. Pinkham's remedies have done for me. For two years I suffered. The doctors said I had tumors, and the only remedy was the surgeon's knife. My mother bought me Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and today I am a healthy woman. For months I suffered from inflammation, and your Sanative Wash relieved me. Your Liver Pills have no equal as a cathartic. Any one wishing proof of what your medicines have done for me can get it from any druggist or by writing to me. You can use my testimonial in any way you wish, and I will be glad to answer letters."—Mrs. CHRISTINA REED, 105 Mound St., Peoria, Ill.

Whistler as a Horseman.

Boggs, a cadet cavalry officer at West Point academy, was an assistant in the riding hall. On one occasion he overheard Whistler, who thoroughly disliked to ride, objecting strenuously to the horse brought for his use. The horse, he argued, was too heavily built and much too large for a man of his size. Whistler, with much vehemence, urged the man next him to "swap." The man with whom he wished to exchange horses was of muscular build and a "pretty generous size" and his horse a lightweight animal, so it seemed to Whistler that it would be a "most fitting exchange."

"Oh, don't swap! Don't you swap, Mr. Whistler" cried the dragoon. "Yours is a war horse, sir!"

"A war horse!" exclaimed Whistler "That settles it. I certainly don't want him."

"Yes, you do, sir," reiterated the man. "He's a war horse, I tell you, for he'd rather die than run."—Century.

Dr. Johnson's Church.

St. Clement Danes has never forgotten the fact that Johnson worshiped within its walls. The pew in which he sat (it is in the north gallery, close to the pulpit) is marked by a brass plate which was erected by the parishioners in 1851. In December, 1884, the centenary of Dr. Johnson's death was observed by a memorial service, when a special address was delivered by the Rev. Dr. Lindsay, at that time rector of St. Clement Danes. Johnson's pew was on that occasion draped in violet. Johnson was always constant in his attendance at church on Good Friday and Easter day. On April 9, 1773, he went with Boswell. "His behavior," writes Boswell, "was, as I had imagined to myself, solemnly devout. I shall never forget the tremulous earnestness with which he pronounced the awful petition in the litany, 'In the hour of death and in the day of judgment, good Lord, deliver us!'"—London News.

Do You Want to Get Slender?

A food specialist said of dieting: "The simplest, easiest and most efficacious diet to bring down the weight is the one dish diet. At no meal, that is, should more than one dish be eaten. The dish may be what you will—Irish stew, macaroni and cheese, roast beef, vegetable soup, bacon and eggs—but no courses are to precede or follow it. You may eat as much as you choose of the dish, and yet, for all that, you will lose weight steadily. It's the variety of dishes—the oysters, soup, fish, turkey, mince pie, ice cream—it's the variety of dishes, creating an artificial appetite when the body has really had all it requires, that causes corpulence. If we confine ourselves to one dish we know when we've had enough—we don't know otherwise—and the result is that we soon drop down to the slimness natural to children, animals and temperate and healthy men and women."—Kansas City Star.

His Apology.

A recent refusal by a member of the English parliament to withdraw "one comma" of what he had said about a member of the government recalls the fact that Richard Brinsley Sheridan once declined to punctuate an apology. In the house of commons one day Sheridan gave an opponent the lie direct. Called upon to apologize, the offender replied:

"Mr. Speaker, I said the honorable member was a liar it is true and I am sorry for it."

The insulted party was not satisfied and said so.

"Sir," retorted Sheridan, "the honorable member can interpret the terms of my statement according to his ability, and he can put punctuation marks where it pleases him."

Sincerity.

Be resolutely and faithfully what you are; be humbly what you aspire to be. Man's noblest gift to man is his sincerity, for it embraces his integrity also.—Thoreau.

FIRE BOSSES QUIT WORK IN MINES OF THE VALLEY

No Change of Conditions Today in Mine Matters

COMPROMISE EXPECTED

Thought That Agreement Can be Reached Without Much Trouble

Carrying out their threat the fire bosses refused to return to work in the mines of the valley this morning under former conditions. Some effort is being made by some of the mines to get along without the regular fire bosess. So far as can be learned there has been no effort made by either the operators or the fire bosses to compromise except in the vicinity of Pittsburg, where separate agreements were reached.

It is not generally thought that the strike of the fire bosses will be long drawn out or especially serious, although it will greatly hinder the operation of the mines for a while.

VALUABLE HORSE BREAKS ITS NECK

Tries to Escape From Tormenters and Falls Over Wire

HEAD TURNED UNDER BODY

McDermott's Creamery and Butter Products company lost a valuable horse yesterday when the animal in trying to escape from some of its tormentors triped on a string of wire at the "Pines" yesterday afternoon and fell, breaking its neck.

The horse had been grazing at the "Pines." It is supposed that some boys began throwing stones at the animal to see it run. The horse wheeled and ran but in so doing caught one of its front feet on a piece of wire surrounding the tennis court. In falling the animal's head was turned under its body and its neck was broken.

TO LEAVE PASTORATE APRIL 30

Rev. Kerr Asks for Commissioners to be Appointed

TO DISSOLVE RELATIONS

Rev. G. G. Kerr, pastor of the Washington Avenue Presbyterian church, announced to his congregation his intention of leaving his pastorate here to accept a Canonsburg call, and asked the members to have commissioners appointed to ask the presbytery for a dissolution of pastoral relations at the Sunday morning's service. A meeting was called for Wednesday night of this week to take such action.

Rev. Kerr has forwarded his acceptance of the call to become pastor of the First Presbyterian—church of Canonsburg. He will leave Charleroi to begin his new work April 30, preaching his last sermon on April 23.

Since receiving the call of the Canonsburg church, Rev. Kerr has been tendered the presidency of Waynesburg college. This position was made vacant by the resignation of Dr. W. M. Hudson, who was forced to relinquish his duties there on account of failing health. Mr. Kerr did not consider this proposition.

Important Meeting

A meeting of the Ladies Auxiliary of the Monessen-Charleroi Hospital will be held at the residence of Mrs. F. P. McCloskey of Crest avenue tomorrow evening. Business of importance is to be transacted and a full attendance of members is requested.

MAD DOG BITE CAUSES DEATH OF MONESSEN BOY AFTER A MONTH

Board of Health at Monessen to Have Charge of Quarantining the Community---Will Write to State Department

SEVERAL PERSONS TAKING THE PASTEUR TREATMENT

It is likely that a strict quarantine will be enforced at Monessen on all dogs, as the result of a mad dog scare. One boy, Carlton Katzer, who was bitten about a month ago by a dog supposedly afflicted with hydrophobia, died on Saturday as an indirect result, and it is stated that there are six others taking the Pasteur treatment at Pittsburg.

This morning the board of health, the board of trade, the council and the chamber of commerce and members of the medical association of Monessen held a joint meeting and the matter of establishing a quarantine was placed in the hands of the board of health. This body at once started work on having dogs of the town muzzled, the State board of health will also be communicated with to learn what steps it advises.

The Katser boy was the first person bitten. He started taking the Pasteur treatment at Pittsburg, but took the measles and had to discontinue the treatment. Others bitten shortly after are still taking the treatment.

It is thought that there were 50 or 75 dogs bitten, and an outbreak of rabies among the canines of the neighborhood of Monessen is greatly feared.

On Saturday Donald McMahon, the son of a banker, was bitten and is now taking the Pasteur treatment.

DUNLEVY MAN DIES

Had Lived Along Monongahela Valley for About 30 Years

WAS A SECTION FOREMAN

John Fitzgerald, 58 years old, and one of the best known citizens of this part of the Monongahela valley, died Sunday morning at his home in Dunlevy. The funeral will be held at 9 o'lock Tuesday morning with requiem high mass at St. Jerome's Catholic church, Charleroi. The body will be taken on the 10:29 train to Pittsburg for burial in Calvary cemetery.

Mr. Fitzgerald was a resident of the Monongahela valley for about 30 years previous to his death. For the past seven years he has been employed as section foreman by the Pittsburg Railways company, and for 21 years previous to that worked for the Kittsburg, Virginia and Charleston railroad as a section man.

ADVANCE NOTICE PER GRASSHOPPER

Spring Weather Coming Sure and Good Season Indicated for Farmers

INSECT AHEAD OF TIME

It took Howard Riggle, the seven year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Riggle of Shady avenue, and a big grasshopper to pull one over on old King Winter. Essentially grasshoppers are not supposed to inhabit this part of the country until late in the spring, but one big fellow was the victim of mixed dates, and was cast forth upon terra firma while a snow storm raged. But yesterday as he bravely struggled for life, he was discovered by little Howard, who forwith adopted the tobacco spitting, long-legged jumper. The grasshopper still thrives but inside the Riggle home where it is warmer. It is considered little less than remarkable to find an insect of that species thise arly in the spring and is regarded by farmers as a good omen.

New Castle Boy Makes Highest Grade in Test

TEN CANDIDATES COMPETE

The highest grade in the examination held Saturday under direction of Congressman Charles Matthews of the Twenty-fourth district for the appointment to a cadetship to the West Point Military Academy from the 24th Congressional district of Pennsylvania, was made by Norman Jay Boots of New Brighton, with a grade of 64. The next highest three were Kenneth Nicholson of Monongahela; Cecil Hugh Blair of New Castle, and Franklin Folton Elder of New Brighton.

The examination was held by Superintendent Kimes of New Castle; Superintendent of Beaver county, and E. B. Enoch, principal of the Eighth ward schools of Washington. While the number that took the examination was equal to that of former years, the grades made were not nearly so good.

BASEBALL PLAYERS EMIGRATE

Charleroi Church League Tossers in Ohio State

OSBORNE GOES TO LIMA

The emigration of ball players from this vicinity began yesterday, when Arch Osborne with three church leagures left for Lima, Ohio. Osborne took with him Pitcher Sherman Keifer and Third Baseman "Bob" Newton of Charleroi and Bennie Cornell of California. Mort Dietz left yesterday for Hamilton, Ohio, where he will be tried out by that team, which is under the management of Jimmy Barton. Both Lima and Hamilton are in the Ohio State League.

"Bill" Phillips, manager of the Youngstown, Ohio, team of the Ohio and Pennsylvania league left last Thursday, and youngsters to be tried out by him will report today. First Baseman Sharkey with the Lutherans last year will probably train out with the Youngstown team, and may be placed by Manager Phillips in fast company.

Alex Sutherland of Speers and Brakewood of Fayette City will be tried out by Phillips.

Phil Hinton, the star New Castle catcher, who has been spending the winter in Charleroi, will leave Tuesday for his home in Baltimore, Md. and will report in a couple of weeks to New Castle.

"Billy" Kuhn who was intending to go with Osborne to Lima, Ohio, was unable on account of illness of his mother to leave, and may not try out at all.

Governor Tener Would do Away With Lengthy Litigation

IN FAVOR OF COMMISSION

Thinks Joint Body of Employers and Workmen Should Investigate

(Special Correspondence)

Harrisburg, April 3—Although two resolutions have been introduced in the Legislature relative to employers' liability in the case of accidents, neither of them are said to be in accord with Governor Tener's ideas on the subject. One of the resolutions was introduced by Senator McNichol of Philadelpia, and has already passed the Senate and the other has been introduced by Representative Walnut of Philadelphia. It is stated that an attempt will be made to get together on a bill that will conform more to the Governor's views. Governor Tener referred to this matter in his inaugural address. He is said to favor a commission whereby all claims may be investigated without the costly litigation now the only redress by an injured employ.

It is expected that the Public Utilities Commission bill will be introduced in the Legislature this week, and will be pushed with all possible speed. The school code, will also come in for an undue share of attention. It is expected that the Sproul main highway bill will be considered in the Senate during the week. So far as known no effort is being made to have the route changed so that one of the highways between county seats would pass along the river and connect Charleroi and all the important river towns in one improved boulevard.

Much interest is manifested in the "Pittsburg Plan" for a new city charter for Pittsburg. Many Charleroi people have looked into the project and heartily approve the general outline of the plans. A number of hearings have been scheduled for this week, including woman suffrage, patent medicines, the bituminous code and others.

INDICATIONS FOR GOOD ATTENDANCE

Judging by the number of tickets already sold, the "Tom Thumb" wedding which is to be held in School Hall Thursday and Friday nights of this week by the ladies of the First Presbyterian church will be largely attended. The play is a pantomime, in which a large contingent of the little tots about town will participate.

Architect J. C. Brenton has been engaged by George S. Might to draw up plans and specifications for his new three story building to be built on Fifth street, opposite the Wilbur Hotel. It is the intention to have the excavation work started within a few weeks and to have the construction under way by May 1.

Prof. and Mrs. Karl Keffer left Saturday for Cave Hill Farm, near Three Springs, Huntingdon county, where they will spend the spring and summer. Prof. Keffer has closed his music studio for the season.

Short but Important

United States Senator Boise Penrose has expressed confidence that the extra session of Congress which convenes tomorrow will be short but exceedingly important. The Democratic majority in the lower House, it is the thought of Senator Penrose, will be on its good behavior and will endeavor to dispose of the work in hand with neatness and dispatch.

It is generally understood that the extra session will take on the form of a street parade by the contending parties with a view of attracting favorable attention for the Presidential campaign of next year.

It is generally admitted that the Democrats will be forced to establish themselves in public confidence if they are to have even a look-in at the Presidential race. No one seriously believes that the recent turning over of the House of Representatives at Washington was the result of confidence in Democracy or regard for that party's principles, but was intended as a rebuke to certain Republicans who had sacrificed the confidence of the people.

While the Democrat in Congress are certain to do their best to establish themselves, the offensive element in Republican ranks has been eliminated, and Senator Penrose will assume the Republican leadership. All his skill and experience will be applied during the extra session and the senior Senator is entirely confident that, by acting with and for President Taft, there will be little or no real trouble in working out all the plans of the Republicans and thus guarantee a restoration of public confidence.

With Senator Penrose as the accepted leader of the Republicans that party in the Senate will start the extra session with more harmony than has attended that body since the discontents first appeared there.

Those college students who visited the local plant Saturday undoubtedly went away feeling that there was some class to us.

PICKED UP IN PASSING

Up in Tionesta, Forest county, according to the version of a traveling man who spent Sunday in town, a couple of boys by the name of Custer are in jail, charged with an unique offense. Information was made by the Human Society and the offense is "hatching deformed and degenerate chickens, and publicly exhibiting the same." It appears that the boys attended a show where a Japanese juggler exhibited a bottle with eggs inside. Later the boys learned that the eggs were soaked in vinegar, which made the shells pliable, after which they could be stretched out long enough to be passed into a narrow necked bottle, after which they were pressed back again into shape with a small rod. The boys got a couple of dozen eggs and experimented. After the vinegar treatment they twisted the eggs into all kinds of shapes—made sausages, pretzels and doughnuts of them. Then to cap the climax they put the freak shaped eggs into the family incubator, and in due time hatched out a bunch of freak chickens. Some were of the dachshund variety, while others gave a good imitation of the boop snake of tradition.

The freaks were so wonderful that the boys began exhibiting them, and just as they were in the midst of a lucrative business the humane agent swooped down on them, and in default of bail the boys were committed to jail to the await action of the grand jury.

A Pittsburg physician, who was a recent visitor in the town, states that he was once called to a household, a child of which had a light case of scarlet fever. There were several other children in the family and the first thing the doctor inquired about was the kind of quarantine that was being maintained.

"You keep he patient away from the rest of the children, I suppose?" said he.

"'Lord bless you, yes,' said the father. 'I don't let them come near the others except for meals.'"

Mind Your Own Business.

An old custom once prevailed in a remote place in England of giving a clock to any one who would truthfully swear that he had minded his own business alone for a year and a day and had not meddled with his neighbors. Many came, but few, if any, gained the prize, which was more difficult to win than the Dunmow flitch of bacon. Though they swore on the four gospels and held out their hands in certain hope, some hitch was sure to be found somewhere, and for all their asseverations the clock remained stationary on the shelf, no one being able to prove his absolute immunity from uncalled for interference in things not in any way concerning himself. At last a young man came with a perfectly clear record, and the clock seemed as if it was at last about to change owners. Then said the custodian, "Oh, a young man was here yesterday and made mighty sure he was going to have the clock, but he didn't." "And why didn't he get it?" "What's that to you?" snapped the custodian. "That's not your business, and you don't get the clock."

HUNTERS' FEE BILL IS URGED

Friends of Measure Asked to Press Its Passage

WOULD BENEFIT WHOLE STATE

Bill Provides For Annual Payment of $1 by Resident Hunters as License Fee—Much Good Can Be Done With Revenue So Derived—Legislature Will Soon Decide Fate of Measure. Now Before Senate.

Intense interest, state-wide in its scope, is being aroused in the Resident Hunters' License Bill, which has just been favorably reported to the Senate at Harrisburg. The measure is now before the Senate for consideration and the fate of the bill will be [illegible]

Senators and Representatives are favorable to the bill, though some are still awaiting the final word from their constituents. Expressions of opinion are being eagerly sought at Harrisburg and a committee of citizens urging the passage of the bill have been instructed to advise all voters in the state to make their wishes known to their representatives.

In the canvass already made not one voter in 500 has opposed the bill and in nearly every instance its provisions have been received with enthusiasm.

The bill provides for the payment of $1 per year as a license fee by all resident hunters. Land owners or bona fide tenants and their children hunting on their own or rented lands are exempt. Fifty per cent of the revenue so derived will be used in payment of bounties for the destruction of weasels, mink, hawks and vermin that destroy song and insectiverous birds and poultry.

It is estimated that the amount thus to be distributed in bounties will be about $75,000 per year. Unless this bill passes there will be no bounty provided for the next two years, as the state has refused to appropriate any more money for that purpose.

The remaining 50 per cent of the revenue raised will be applied to the protection, propagation and distribution of game under the supervision of the state game commission.

At present the appropriation available to the game commission amounts to only $20,000 per year. This meager amount must be applied to protect over 28,000,000 acres and as the pending measure will provide a revenue of from $150,000 to $200,000 per year the game commission will develop into a useful and highly valuable branch of state government.

While residents of the large cities have been slow to realize the fact those who dwell in the suburban and country districts have been quick to realize that the proposed bill if passed will increase all bird and game life within the state. The payment of the small annual fee of $1 by those who love the recreation of hunting will double and treble the number of birds and game throughout the state and mean a large increase in food supply. It will make possible a good day's shooting to the man with limited time and means without the expense of long trips. It will undoubtedly soon bring about a longer open season and more liberal daily allowances per gun of game taken.

Friends of the bill promise that it would soon bring about a friendly cooperation between the paid game warden and the forester of the forestry department that will largely decrease losses from forest fires and promote the betterment of game conditions throughout the state.

As important as all other conditions, the additional bounty provided for the destruction of vermin and pests will save the farmers additional thousands yearly.

A peculiar feature in connection with the bill is the fact that hunters themselves are asking the privilege of paying the tax that will insure these benefits. The committee having the bill in charge are all men who love hunting as a pastime. The committee consists of: Edwin K. Morse, chairman, Pittsburg; John M. Phillips, Carrick; Charles A. Painter, Pittsburg; R. R. Bennett, Pittsburg; H. F. Ward, Washington, Pa., and Thomas Leggett, Pittsburg.

There is, admittedly, no state in the Union with better opportunity for the development of game and bird life and magnificent and highly valuable forest resources than Pennsylvania. Wanton destruction of animal life of irresponsible persons is causing irreparable damage to the undeserving and the proposed act is regarded by all fair huntsmen as a modest but legitimate tax for providing a fund that will forever safeguard the state. In Harrisburg it is recognized as the most unselfish act ever urged before the legislature.

The committee urges all interested in game and forest protection to communicate at once with their representatives in Harrisburg and urge the passage of this measure. State representatives and senators are anxiously awaiting the voice of the people and it should make itself heard in unmistakable terms. The senate will take first action upon the bill and it is imperative that the public will be registered at once.

A Long Credit.

The motto of the highland host that battled for the Stuart cause, which bonny Prince Charlie headed, apparently was that how-an helps those who help themselves liberally. They levied toll on the henroost, stable and, according to the author of "The Land of Romance," even on the pockets of the Covenanters.

At Swarthholm a party of these marauders overhauled the house of a tailor, and when one of them was about to cut up a web of homespun that had taken his fancy the good wife earnestly remonstrated.

"A day'll come when ye'll ha' tae pay for that," she solemnly assured him.

Scissors in hand, Donald paused. "An' when will she pe hafing to do that?" he asked.

"At the last day," said she.

"An' that will pe a fery goot long credit," the robber coolly returned. "She wass going to pe only taking a coat, but now she will pe taking a waistcoat as well."

A Mountain In the Sky.

Somewhere many miles away from this earth an enormous mountain twenty miles high is flying through space. The mountain is known astronomically as the planet Eros. The ordinary man has long taken it for granted that all the planets are more or less round in shape. The small planet Eros, however, is an exception to this rule. According to the latest astronomical information, it is a mere mountain in space, "without form and void," and as it turns upon its axis first one corner and then another is presented to view. These small worlds (few are over ten or twenty miles across) are not large enough to have sufficient gravity to draw their structure into symmetry and remain as when launched into space—mammoth meteorites. A tantalizing fact for astronomers is that Eros passed very close to us about Jan. 24, 1894—before the planet was recognized—and that quite so near an approach is not due again till 1975.

"The Mine's Blown Up."

I was sitting on the edge of my bed, loosening the heel of one of my rubber boots with the toe of the other, when suddenly through the stillness of the sleeping town, from the power house half a mile away, came a low and rising note, the great siren whistle in the power house. Almost fascinated, I listened as the great note rose higher and more shrill and died away again. One blast meant a fire in the town, two blasts fire in the buildings at the mine and three blasts, the most terrible of all, a disaster or trouble in the mine. Once more, after an interminable pause, the sound came again and once more rose and died away. I did not move, but there was a sudden coldness that came over me as once more for the third time, the deep note broke out on the quiet air. Almost instantaneously the loud jingle of my telephone brought me to my feet. I took down the receiver. "The mine's blown up," said a woman's voice.—Atlantic.

Saying No.

The author of "Pat McCarty," a book of verse with a setting of prose, shows how naturally some of the Irishmen of Antrim dilute the wine of narrative with the water of verbiage. In the excerpt below—"The Way We Tell a Story"—the diluent is used with a particularly free hand:

Says I to him, I says, says I,
Says I to him, I says
The thing, says I, I says to him,
Is just, says I, this ways
I hev, says I, a gre't respeck
For you and for your breed,
And onything I cud, I says,
I'd do, I wud indeed.
I don't know any man, I says,
I'd do it for, says I,
As fast, I says, as for yoursel',
That's tellin' ye no lie
There's naught, says I, I wudn't do
To plase your feyther's son,
But this, I says, ye see, says I,
I says, it can't be done.

The Spectacled Bear.

The spectacled bear of Ecuador is so called because of a patch of white around each eye, which makes the animal look as though he was peering through a pair of great spectacles.

In size and general color the spectacled bear looks not unlike the American black bear. But its hair is very shaggy. At each side of the head is a white bar, which gives the animal the appearance of wearing a halter. But the most distinctive feature is the white around the eyes.

Attachment.

The schoolteacher was trying to illustrate the difference between plants and animals.

"Plants," she explained, "are not susceptible of attachment to man as animals are."

"How about burs, teacher?" piped a small boy who had passed the summer in the country.—Chicago News.

The News by Windmill.

In certain parts of Holland births, marriages and deaths are frequently announced by the windmills instead of in the newspapers. When a miller gets married he stops his mill with the arms of the wheel in an oblique position and with the sails unfurled. His friends and guests often do likewise with their mills in token of the ceremony. To indicate a birth the wheel is stopped with the arms in a slanting position, but at a more acute angle than for a marriage and with the two upper sails unfurled. Should a miller die the sails of his mill are all furled and the wheel is turned round until the arms assume an upright cross in which position they are left until after the funeral has taken place.—Harper's Weekly.

A Comparison.

Two friends met one day after a long absence. One of them had a very ruddy complexion, and his nose was carmine. The other looked into his face and said:

"Ah, John, I doot"—

But John said he was not to judge by appearances, as he only drank one glass of beer in a day.

"Oh, weel," said the other, "yer face, perhaps, is like our gas meter—it registers mair than it consumes."—London Answers.

Where They Belong.

"Have you any men serving sentences for bigamy?" asked the prison visitor.

"Lots of them," replied the keeper, "but we confine them all in the insane ward."—Philadelphia Record.

Jury Penalties.

Nowadays no penalty is enforced when the twelve men chosen to form the jury are unable to agree upon a verdict. Formerly, however, a refractory juryman was committed to prison and the verdict of the eleven was taken. In the reign of King Edward III the judges decided that a verdict given by a majority was a nullity and recommended that the judges should carry the jury about with them in a cart till they should agree. The old custom that jurors should fast until they had agreed in their verdict prevailed long, but was mercifully relaxed somewhat in Tudor times, and during Queen Elizabeth's reign a banquet was usually given to the jury by the successful party to a suit.—St. Paul Pioneer Press.

Science and Cheese.

A medical authority kindly assures us that as long as cheese isn't decayed it will not affect the health of the consumer. This is a fact that we have suspected for a considerable time. But how is the ordinary cheese epicure to detect the difference unless he waits for results?

There is cheese so thoroughly disguised in the costume and aroma of decay that its proper standing on the sanitary testing table would puzzle a conjurer.

For instance, there is the brand known as limburger.

But why pursue the subject?—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Invisible Indians.

All Indians seem to have learned a wonderful way of walking unseen, making themselves invisible like certain spiders, which, in case of alarm, caused, for example, by a bird alighting on the bush their webs are spread upon, immediately bounce themselves up and down on their elastic threads so rapidly that only a blur is visible. The wild Indian power of escaping observation, even where there is little or no cover to hide in, was probably slowly acquired in hard hunting and fighting lessons while trying to approach game, take enemies by surprise or get safely away when compelled to retreat. And this experience transmitted through many generations seems at length to have become what is vaguely called instinct.—John Muir in Atlantic.

AFRAID OF MOONLIGHT.

The Reason Porto Ricans Carry Umbrellas at Night

"The majority of Porto Ricans have instilled in them from earliest infancy a superstitious dread of the full moon's rays," said a business man who has just returned from that country.

"It is a curious sight to the American visitor to note men and women going along the streets and highways of the island with umbrellas raised over their heads in the lone watches of the night, and the more brilliantly the moon is shining the greater will be the number of people who are thus protecting themselves from her beams Out in the sequestered rural districts a gay mounted cavalier will be met at midnight, his bridle rein in one hand and an upraised umbrella in the other. It looks weird and also ridiculous, but the natives do it for a peculiar reason. They are possessed of the conviction that Luna's full light striking upon mortals is almost sure to make them mentally unsound—that is to say, lunatics—and that is why they interpose a shield between them and her dazzling brightness

"To sleep where the moon could shine full upon one is, in the view of a Porto Rican, to tempt fate, and it would be a daring one who could be hired to do it for any consideration."—Baltimore American.

STRENUOUS LIVING.

A Long Day in the Life of an English Lady in 1791.

As for industrious idleness, which is held to blame for the wrecking of our nervous systems, it was not unknown to an earlier generation Mme le Brun assures us that in her youth pleasure loving people would leave Brussels early in the morning, travel all day to Paris to hear the opera and travel all night home "That," she observes—as well she may—"was considered being fond of the opera."

A paragraph in one of Horace Walpole's letters gives us the record of a day and a night in the life of an English lady—sixteen hours of "strain' which would put New York to the blush. "I heard the Duchess of Gordon's journal of last Monday," he writes to Miss Berry in the spring of 1791. "She first went to hear Handel's music in the abbey; she then clambered over the benches and went to Hasting's trial in the hall, after dinner to the play, then to Lady Lucan's assembly, after that to Ranelagh and returned to Mrs Hobert's faro table; gave a ball herself in the evening of that morning, into which she must have got a good way, and set out for Scotland the next day Hercules could not have accomplished a quarter of her labors in the same space of time"—Atlantic Monthly

A Pretty Poor Portrait.

A Chinaman of very high rank had his portrait painted, and when it was finished the painter requested him to inquire of the passersby what they thought of it. The other agreed and asked the first comer:

"Do you think this portrait like?"

"The hat is extremely like," replied the critic.

The subject of the portrait asked a similar question of a second stranger, who answered that the clothes seemed to be exactly reproduced He was about to interrogate a third when the painter stopped him and said impatiently:

"The resemblance of the hat and clothes is of no importance Ask the gentleman what he thinks of the face."

On being asked this question the stranger hesitated a very long time, but at last he replied:

"The beard and hair are first rate"

London as It Was.

Haydn's "Dictionary of Dates" makes the statement that the old name of the city of London was written Lynden or Llyndin, meaning "the city on the lake." An old tradition gives us to understand that London was founded by Brute, a descendant of Aeneas, and called New Troy or Troynovant until the time of Lud, who surrounded the town with walls and named it Caer-Lud, or Lud's Town This latter is probably the correct version of the story, if for no other reason because it is an easy matter to detect a similarity between the expression Lud's Town and London It is claimed by some writers that there was a city on the same spot 1,107 years B. C., and it is known that the Romans founded a city there called Londinium A. D. 61.

Real Modesty.

"An actor should be modest, and most actors are," said a prominent one at a luncheon in Pittsburg. "But I know a young actor who at the beginning of his career carried modesty almost too far.

"This young man inserted in all the dramatic papers a want advertisement that said:

"'Engagement wanted—small part, such as dead body or outside shouts preferred.'"

Preferences.

"I think I'll spend my vacation on the Lynx," said the first flea. "I'm fond of golf."

"The giraffe for mine," declared the second flea. "I need the highest altitude I can find"—Washington Herald.

HONORED THE MONKEY.

Origin of the Coat of Arms of the Earl of Leinster.

Most of the wild animals have a place in heraldry, and many strange and impossible creatures, such as griffins, dragons and unicorns, have been invented as emblems of daring and valor. But the donkey and the monkey have not been so used, except in one instance, where the monkey has been admitted to the ranks of titled nobility. The story of this adoption is told by Mr. Curtis in his book "One Irish Summer"

On the Leinster coat of arms are three monkeys standing with plain collar and chained, motto, "Crom a-boo," "To Victory" This is the only coat of arms, I am told, that has ever borne a monkey in the design It was adopted by John Fitzthomas—Fitzgerald in 1316 for romantic reasons

While this Earl of Leinster was an infant he was in the castle of Woodstock, which is now owned by the Duke of Marlborough. The castle caught fire in the confusion the child was forgotten, and when the family and servants remembered him and started a search they found the nursery in ruins But on one of the towers was a gigantic ape, a pet of the family, carefully holding the young earl in his arms The animal, with extraordinary intelligence, had crawled through the smoke rescued the baby and carried it to the top of the tower

When the earl had grown to manhood he discarded the family coat of arms and adopted the monkeys for his crest, and they have been retained to this day Wherever you find the tomb of a Fitzgerald you will see the monkeys at the feet of the effigy or under the inscription.

SPENDTHRIFT ISABELLA.

A Sight That Checked Her Royal Extravagance For Awhile.

We are accustomed to think that the day is long past when a sovereign could oppress and offend a whole kingdom by personal extravagance. But the late Isabella of Spain belonged in spirit to the sixteenth century An incident of her reckless career—which ended in the loss of the throne—is noted in Munsey's Magazine

She spent money, pouring it out like water, at a time when the treasury was nearly bankrupt and when the proverb "Poor as a Spaniard" was far too true. All her best advisers urged her to practice economy. Very few of them succeeded, and these only for a short time

A certain chamberlain of hers once hit upon a plan to make her realize how enormous were the sums that she was spending Passing through the hall of the palace, she was surprised to see a vast heap of silver pieces, resembling the contents of a great bin of wheat, but piled up in the middle of the floor The queen summoned her chamberlain

"What is the meaning of all this money?" she demanded of him

"Oh," he replied, with a low bow, "this is merely the amount which I have brought out to pay the bill of your majesty's glovemaker"—

The queen colored and then laughed, and for several months she was less extravagant in her expenditures for clothes

E Pluribus Unum.

The country is indebted to John Adams for its national motto, with an Englishman of note sharing in the honor It seems that while Adams was minister to England Sir John Prestwick, an eminent English antiquary, suggested to him a good motto to represent the union of the American colonies Adams at once was taken with the idea, which he transmitted to Charles Thompson, the secretary of congress, who on June 20, 1782, reported to that body his design for a government seal In this the Latin legend "E Pluribus Unum" was to be borne on a ribbon held in the beak of an eagle.

Just where Sir John got the idea is not certain, but it is a fact that the motto was in use on the cover of the Gentleman's Magazine, first published in 1730, and it may have struck his fancy by its applicability to the situation then obtaining in America.

New Zealand's Glaciers.

The great size of the glaciers around Mount Cook, in New Zealand, has been often remarked. The Tasman is eighteen miles long, the Murchison ten miles, the Godley eight miles, the Mueller eight miles and the Hooker seven miles Most of these glaciers have moraines of exceeding roughness, but the approaches to them are not steep, as is usually the case with European glaciers The southern Alpine snow line is only a little over 7,000 feet. Glacially polished rocks are rare, and in many ways the mountains are singularly different from those of central Europe.

"I was just telling our friend here, Molly, that it was storming on the day of our marriage."

"Surely not, Hiram! The weather was perfectly lovely!"

"Well, well! I don't know how I got so mixed up about it; probably because it's been storming ever since"—Atlanta Constitution.

A Fish Story.

"There are as good fish in the sea as were ever taken out of it," remarked Small to Young, who had been refused by Moneybag's daughter.

"Yes, I know. But they are not goldfish."

Circumstances are the rulers of the weak. They are but the instruments of the wise.—Samuel Lover.

Jefferson Davis and His Nerves.

Jefferson Davis shrank from the sight of every form of suffering, even in imagination. When the "Raboo in the Wood" was first read to him, a grown man, in time of illness, he would not endure the horror of it. His sympathy with the oppressed was almost abnormal, "so that," says Mrs. Davis, "it was a difficult matter to keep order with children and servants." All this shows that he was nervous, sensitive, which is a terrible handicap to a leader of men He suffered always from nervous dyspepsia and neuralgia and came home from his office fasting, a mere mass of throbbing nerves and perfectly exhausted." He was keenly susceptible to the atmosphere about him, especially to the moods of people, "abnormally sensitive to disapproval. Even a child's disapproval discomposed him." And Mrs. Davis admits that this sensitiveness and acute feeling of being misjudged made him reserved and unapproachable It made him touchy as to his dignity also, and there are stories of his cherishing a grudge for some insignificant or imagined slight and punishing the author of it.—Gamaliel Bradford, Jr., in Atlantic

Irving and His Money.

John Hare, the English actor, said that one of the failings charged to Irving's account was that of extravagance—that he did not know the value of money. It is quite true he did not know the value of money for himself, but he knew its value to others He knew its value to the poor and helpless, and to these he gave with a lavish hand

Once, not long before his death, playing a three nights' engagement in an unpretentious midland town, his habit was to drive nightly to the theater (a very short distance from his hotel) in the same dilapidated fly. The fare was a shilling. The conveyance was shabby, the driver old, poor and worn out. At the conclusion of the engagement, on entering his hotel, Irving said to the landlord, "Have you paid the cabman?" "Yes, Sir Henry." "What did you give him for himself?" "I gave him half a crown, Sir Henry" "Give him a sovereign," was the rejoinder; "he drives very well, and he doesn't drive often"

The Myth of the Doones.

How largely Mr Blackmore drew upon his imagination for the story of "Lorna Doone" is made clear by F W. Hackwood in his book, "The Good Old Times." There were, in fact, no Doones The word was simply a local bogy, a modified form of "Dane," a memory of the faroff times when the viking invaders harried the land. "The only vestige of actuality discoverable is a faint tradition that a fugitive from the battle of Sedgmoor, to escape the hangings of Judge Jeffreys, appropriated the ruins of some wretched huts in recesses of the Badgworthy glen, now 'the Doon valley,' finding there a safe retreat in which he reared a considerable family which managed to eke out a living by committing petty depredations in the district. The 'last of the Doones,' an old man and his granddaughter, are said to have perished in the snow during the winter of 1800."

Joy In Store For Some One.

Among the advertisements in a monthly magazine we find this

For Sale or Exchange—A fine young male bobcat and a female coyote, also a mandolin and pair of fieldglasses

Such opportunities as this are not often offered. The fieldglasses most of us could manage to do without, but the male bobcat, the female coyote and the mandolin would go far to make life happy for any reasonable individual. All these are productive of music, and music gives joy to all rightly constituted persons. There are, of course, some people who cannot play upon a mandolin, but anybody can play upon a bobcat or a coyote. This fine chance to get a varied and interesting collection of musical instruments will undoubtedly bring many replies.—Rochester Union and Advertiser.

The Laziest People.

There is no doubt that the Malays are among the laziest people in the world Except in rare cases they will not take the trouble to learn when they are young, and afterward, if they have learned, they will not exert themselves to apply their knowledge to any object which require a sustained effort. That they possess effort is known to any one who has seen Malays engaged in any enterprise which savors of sport. They do not mind the trouble if there is only some risk and excitement in the work.—Times of Malaya.

A Marked Judge.

The descriptive reporter of a certain daily paper in describing the turning of a dog out of court by order of the bench recently detailed the occurrence as follows. "The ejected canine as he was ignominiously dragged from the room cast a glance at the judge for the purpose of being able to identify him at some future time."

"Yes, suh," he said. "Providence sometimes puts us in paradise befo' we gits ter heaven."—Atlanta Constitution

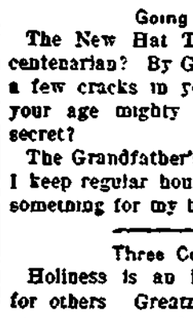
SAVED FROM AN OPERATION

By Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound



Peoria, Ill.—"I wish to let every one know what Lydia E. Pinkham's remedies have done for me For two years I suffered. The doctors said I had tumors, and the only remedy was the surgeon's knife. My mother bought me Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and today I am a healthy woman. For months I suffered from inflammation, and your Sanative Wash relieved me. Your Liver Pills have no equal as a cathartic. Any one wishing proof of what your medicines have done for me can get it from any druggist or by writing to me. You can use my testimonial in any way you wish, and I will be glad to answer letters"—Mrs. CHRISTINA REED, 105 Mound St., Peoria, Ill.

The great volume of unsolicited testimony constantly pouring in proves conclusively that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is a remarkable remedy for those distressing feminine ills from which so many women suffer.

DO YOU know of anyone who is old enough to read, who has not seen that sign at a railroad crossing?

If everyone has seen it at some time or other, then why doesn't the railroad let the sign rot away? Why does the railroad company continue to keep those signs at every crossing?

Maybe you think, Mr. Merchant, "Most everybody knows my store, I don't have to advertise."

Your store and your goods need more advertising than the railroads need do to warn people to "Look Out for the Cars."

Nothing is ever completed in the advertising world.

The Department Stores are a very good example—they are continually advertising—and they are continually doing a good business

Whistler as a Horseman.

Boggs, a cadet cavalry officer at West Point academy, was an assistant in the riding hall. On one occasion he overheard Whistler, who thoroughly disliked to ride, objecting strenuously to the horse brought for his use The horse, he argued, was too heavily built and much too large for a man of his size Whistler with much vehemence, urged the man next him to "swap" The man with whom he wished to exchange horses was of muscular build and a "pretty generous size" and his horse a lightweight animal, so it seemed to Whistler that it would be a "most fitting exchange."

"Oh, don't swap' Don't you swap, Mr. Whistler" cried the dragoon "Yours is a war horse, sir!"

"A war horse!" exclaimed Whistler "That settles it. I certainly don't want him."

"Yes, you do, sir," reiterated the man "He's a war horse, I tell you, for he'd rather die than run."—Century.

Dr. Johnson's Church.

St. Clement Danes has never forgotten the fact that Johnson worshiped within its walls The pew in which he sat (it is in the north gallery, close to the pulpit) is marked by a brass plate which was erected by the parishioners in 1851 In December, 1884, the centenary of Dr Johnson's death was observed by a memorial service, when a special address was delivered by the Rev. Dr. Lindsay, at that time rector of St. Clement Danes Johnson's pew was on that occasion draped in violet Johnson was always constant in his attendance at church on Good Friday and Easter day. On April 9, 1773, he went with Boswell. "His behavior" writes Boswell, "was, as I had imagined to myself, solemnly devout. I shall never forget the tremulous earnestness with which he pronounced the awful petition in the litany, 'In the hour of death and in the day of judgment, good Lord, deliver us!'"—London News

Do You Want to Get Slender?

A food specialist said of dieting: "The simplest, easiest and most efficacious diet to bring down the weight is the one dish diet. At no meal, that is, should more than one dish be eaten. The dish may be what you will—Irish stew, macaroni and cheese, roast beef, vegetable soup, bacon and eggs—but no courses are to precede or follow it. You may eat as much as you choose of the dish, and yet, for all that, you will lose weight steadily. It's the variety of dishes—the oysters, soup, fish, turkey, mince pie, ice cream—it's the variety of dishes, creating an artificial appetite when the body has really had all it requires, that causes corpulence. If we confine ourselves to one dish we know when we've had enough—we don't know otherwise—and the result is that we soon drop down to the slimness natural to children, animals and temperate and healthy men and women."—Kansas City Star.

His Apology.

A recent refusal by a member of the English parliament to withdraw "one comma" of what he had said about a member of the government recalls the fact that Richard Brinsley Sheridan once declined to punctuate an apology. In the house of commons one day Sheridan gave an opponent the lie direct. Called upon to apologize, the offender replied:

"Mr. Speaker, I said the honorable member was a liar it is true and I am sorry for it."

The insulted party was not satisfied and said so.

"Sir," retorted Sheridan, "the honorable member can interpret the terms of my statement according to his ability, and he can put punctuation marks where it pleases him."

Sincerity.

Be resolutely and faithfully what you are; be humbly what you aspire to be. Man's noblest gift to man is his sincerity, for it embraces his integrity also.—Thoreau.
